

The 2010-2011 Teachers-of-the-Year for Cherry Hill and Roosevelt Schools are Mrs. Susan Boucher and Mrs. Kelly Maver.

Mrs. Susan Boucher has been part of the Cherry Hill family for seven years. She has enjoyed every year teaching first grade. Prior to joining the staff in River Edge Susan taught sixth grade, fourth grade and third grade. In addition Susan was a K-8 basic skills teacher.

Susan received her undergraduate degree from Fordham University's Rose Hill campus in the Bronx, NY. She returned to Fordham for her graduate work and received her M.S. in Early Childhood Education. Susan also earned thirty post-graduate credits through the College of New Jersey.

In River Edge, Susan has served as PTO liaison. She has provided training to several student teachers. Susan also participated in an international exchange program which provides teacher training to international educators. Susan is currently working on the Tri-district Language Arts Curriculum and serving as Co-President of Project Pride.

Kelly Maver has been teaching first grade at Roosevelt School for five years. She received her Bachelor's Degree in Early Childhood Education from Arizona State University. Kelly has participated in the summer program for the New Jersey Council for the Humanities, the Summer Conference for Early Childhood Education at Arizona State University and the Columbia University Teacher's College Summer Writing Project. Kelly has also participated in the Tri-District Language Arts Committee and the Math Committee. She has taught staff development classes on Writing Workshop and Social Studies.

Kelly enjoys sharing her love for poetry, technology and animals with her first graders through her such projects as the classroom zoo and environmental poetry anthology.
